Policy

Instruction

Instructors may require students to complete assignments outside of regular classroom hours for the purpose of making up unattained learning objectives resulting from approved absences or to assist students in achieving the planned objectives of the course of instruction. Evaluation of completed outside assignments may be included in the determination of grades earned. Hours of attendance for credit or apportionment purposes may not be increased as a result of the completion of such assignments, except to make up for the loss of credit hours as a result of approved absences.
